

Aer Lingus Trade Update

Postponed services from Manchester Airport- JFK & MCO

Due to international borders opening later than expected, Aer Lingus is postponing the start of new transatlantic services between Manchester Airport and New York JFK and Orlando. New services to Barbados will launch as scheduled.

The US routes were due to commence on 29th July.

We remain fully committed to transatlantic services from Manchester Airport, and look forward to launching New York and Orlando on 30th September, and to Barbados on 20th October.

We apologise for any inconvenience caused. Guests will be given the following options:

- Change their booking to a later date. No change fee will be charged. A fare difference may apply for rebooking.
- Apply for a refund. Please enter the one of the following waiver codes into the endorsement box: RIS21EURCV to reissue RIF21EURCV to refund
